Mandira's Mandir (Temple)

We miss you Mandira, you will always remain with us.

It is with utmost reverence that VIDYA Mandira was conceptualized and is now being implemented. It is almost a spiritual feeling as one meets these women who are fulfilling Dr. Mandira Mukherjee's dreams...they have come in full force to be in team Mandira. They are the torch bearers of this unique women's empowerment programme.

Dr. Mandira Mukherjee was a star, a loving, professional leader who worked closely with VIDYA for almost 15 years. She came as a doctor to VIDYA's Bal Vihar and then went on to create a movement for women. This was the path breaking VIDYA Micro Credit movement with over 150 single participants in Delhi. She worked with them in slum communities and helped them carve out a future in most difficult circumstances! It is due to her inspiration, faith and courage, that so many women could transform. Meet Sunita, abused, beaten by her husband and in dire need for funds to take care of her children. With the VIDYA loan, she opened a small shop on the window of her jhuggi and that changed her life. Today in her little temple, next to the Gods she has a picture of Mandira, in gratitude for the transformation and the support in her life!

May she rest in eternal peace.

A prayer meeting was held on the June, 24 in the School attended by Mandira's near and dear ones.

Polishing Soft Skills

Soft skills are increasingly becoming the hard skills of today's workforce. A session on soft skills in collaboration with Barclays Compliance Division was held on August 21 for students of Open School. After the formal introduction by our VIDYA team member Ankit Bhuptani, Mr. Baxi started explaining the need for developing soft skills. In his session, he briefly covered five major non-verbal soft skills through a short video - Handshake, Eye-Contact, Crossed Arms, Smiling and Posture. He talked about how non-verbal gestures can be as powerful as the verbal ones to convey our thoughts. Later for a better understanding of the concepts, the Barclays team performed a skit covering all the above skills.

Youth Forum

Cultural Exchange

Friends of VIDYA Asawari Deshmukh and her son Atharv Deshmukh visited VIDYA's Youth Forum. They are from Arizona, United States and were in Powai to share their experiences of shifting and settling in a foreign land with the Youth Forum members. Atharv along with his friends Fransisco, Andy and Brenen had come to spend some time and interact with the youth in India. It was a wonderful exchange of ideas, experiences, dreams and aspirations. The youth shared their life experiences and how VIDYA's values have helped them to continue their education in the midst of all adversities.

Voicing Opinions

The Forum started with yoga classes by Pia Bhagat. She showed some yogasanas and breathing exercises to calm and relax one's mind and body. The Youth Forum then had a discussion on the role of youth in independent India (especially looking at the contemporary scenario). They came up with points such as love and respect for the nation, increased sense of materialistic life, voting rights of youth, development of youth, individualistic attitude, bad habits and bad company, pornography, unemployment, "showing off" behaviour and adults' view towards the youth. The session was explorative, clarifying one's understanding/ misunderstanding regarding many issues, role of today's youth in the national context.

Life Skills through Poetry

Poetically Yours

The Youth Forum began by the participants creating a story in English of a college going boy by drawing references from their own lives. Initially the participants found it tough to create a story in English, but with a little bit of help and guidance from the VIDYA team did a fairly good job in the end. In the second round of activity they were asked to form teams and write poetry. Poetically the soft skills were further polished as the participants were asked to jot down their thought process as well. The teams came up with beautiful poems on nature, relationships, rainy season etc.
