VIDYA
BANGALORE
FEBRUARY &
MARCH
2020

Life has been beautiful and zooming at a fast pace, aimed at concentrating on self-roles and goals; the gifts of science and technology make it easier, faster and ensures almost everything made available at the click of buttons, Until the advent of COVID 19.

THE CORONA - LOCK DOWN IN MARCH

Corona, the pandemic strike of the era has left every citizen of the world, rich and poor, educated and illiterate, young and old in lurch and fear, desperately in need of help. March 3rd 2020 was the day when the news of the first case of COVID-19 emerged in Bangalore, bringing life to a stagger and slowly to near standstill. Today, the whole nation strives to drive COVID 19 out of their lives. Social distancing being the order of the day, it is the primary duty of organizations like VIDYA to reach out to the needy, helpless and voiceless, to bring in awareness and supplies, driving home to them the policies of the government and its measures related to financial and material aids. The teachers of VIDYA were armed and were ready to inform and prepare the students for the impending epidemic.

In all the government schools and communities that we work with, students were shown instructional videos and demonstrations on preventive measures to be carried out. Significance of maintaining good health and hygiene, making masks at home and the importance of social distancing were taught. We shared emergency calling numbers with them and shared the new insurance policy released by the government in lieu of the prevailing virus.

The children were advised to take this time to improve on their reading skills, help family with household chores and help their siblings in studies.

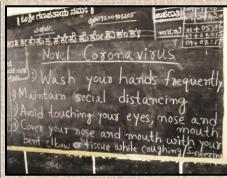

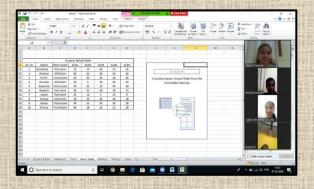

WORK FROM HOME

With the VIDYA Centres closed since March 16, the work continues from home. Thanks to technology, the teachers are using innovative methods of teaching.

Teaching English and computer is a challenge the teachers have taken up, especially when the students do not have computer at their disposal. One on One session is conducted via WhatsApp call. The teacher shows her screen and teaches them. Groups are taught on Zoom. Not only students, the VIDYA teachers are also attending sessions and honing their English Communicative skills as well as computer basics and advanced skills

They are also lending their hand to help people in this crisis.

Susama, Indumathi and Tanuja have been making masks at home and have distributed around 100 masks each in their neighbourhood.

One of our teachers has gone out of her way to buy the provisions with the help of the funds given by a VIDYA partner and has supplied the material to the needy near her house.

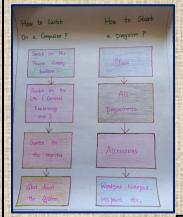

WhatsApp groups have been made and the teachers are in touch with the students giving them information about coronavirus, the dos and don'ts, urging them to stay indoors and giving them encouragement to practice the craft & skills they have learnt so far.

VIDYA teachers have joined online workshops on effective teaching practices, skills in craft and so on...Working from home, they remain productive by planning for current and next academic year with new content for the entire spectrum of subjects and classes and also creating their own teaching aids. All the rich source of documentation for present and future are being uploaded on

Google Drives. The unavailability of computer systems in their homes is not making them stop, they are working on their mobiles and trying to make the most productive use of this Lockdown

A series of documentary videos were played and the consequent discussions on them gave an insight on the need to "equal rights."

Speech competitions focusing on what equality means to each one of the students, challenges faced, ways and means to overcome the challenges not only provided space for the beneficiaries to voice their views, concerns and thoughts, but also brought light on the status of women with reference to the society we live in.

The Celebrations closed on a positive note with a skit presented by the team on "Each for Equal", distributions of certificates, team sport events and a grand feast prepared by the staff and students.
